ORLANDO, FL — Firmly rooted in tradition with an eye on the future, Aagaard-Juergensen, LLC (AJC-LLC) is celebrating the 50th anniversary of its founding in 1970.

Since its inception, AJC-LLC has seized every change and major shift in the evolving construction industry as an opportunity to reinvent and remain an active and innovative community partner for its business clients.

“For 50 years, AJC-LLC has provided exceptional design build engineering and architectural design solutions that help our customers meet the construction needs of an ever-changing marketplace,” said AJC-LLC President Randy Brooks.

We are continually expanding our resources, refining our services, and evolving to meet the needs of our customers, vendors and associates. Today, we're well positioned to deliver the speed, service and scalability required for effective commercial design and construction in one of the fastest growing segments of the country, Central Florida.”

In the five decades Aagaard Juergensen has been in business, they've completed automotive and fleet centers, religious facilities, industrial and manufacturing sites, commercial and retail centers, and many other commercial buildings. As Brooks explains, “We're not in a specific niche market. We do a little bit of it all.” Some of the most notable buildings in Central Florida are Aagaard-Juergensen buildings.

“We are excited to be celebrating 50 years of innovation and success in providing engineering and architectural design services for every phase of construction, and I am proud to work with such a diverse client base that includes some of Central Florida's most innovative companies and non-profit organizations, as well as growing small businesses,” commented Mike Moore, Vice-President.

AJC-LLC was also named #19 on The Orlando Business Journal's Fast 50 in 2019 and is quite proud to have served the Central Florida community since 1970. Today, the dream Aagaard and Juergensen began in 1970 is a solid reality, and about 80 percent of AJC's business is referral and repeat business.
